"Every one of our customers would like to be the best there is," commented Bob Christensen of TheFormTool, LLC, "but not all have the patience or can afford the time and effort required to be the best — even with our easiest-to-use software. Now any firm, company or agency can be among the top 1% most productive document users in no time by combining the best technology from TheFormTool with the best processes and training from Affinity Consulting.

"We're so enthusiastic about what Affinity's experts bring to the table — process and systems consulting, expert training, custom development and maintenance of libraries of intelligent forms — that we're including a relationship with Affinity in our enterprise-level relationships. Affinity will make a huge difference for many of our potential customers."

"Since agreeing on this effort six months ago," added Barron Henley of Affinity Consulting Group, "our document assembly and systems teams have trained directly with TFT's gurus to become true experts with TheFormTool's software. We're delighted to share our skills with their customers around the world and to introduce their amazing software to our audiences."
